THIS MONTH'S COVER

AH, the joy of a good read - and a good reader! Our Bugle cover this month features Marian Nance, Chief Librarian of Camp Zama Libraries, and five year old Kennedy Suttice-First. Marian is one fine storyteller! She captivates young audiences with stories chosen to emphasize themes such as this month's celebration of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. In addition to storytelling programs (see page 5), the libraries have plenty of good children's books, quiet reading areas, Dial-A-Story and an enthusiastic staff to help your child find the just-right book.

FINANCIAL AND EMPLOYMENT READINESS 263-8091

While shopping at the PX, your fifteen year-old daughter spots a 30-percent-off sign. She's got to have it and insists on using the last of her allowance to buy a pair of deep discounted designer jeans even though she has a drawer full of denim at home. Three days later, she finds out that her favorite rock group is coming to town and begs for the ticket money. The experts are unanimous; don't bail her out. Letting children make ill-advised purchases with their money now, when the expenditures aren't large, is the best way for them to learn. In a child's (as well as an adult's) world, need is often another name for want. There's nothing wrong with wanting something. It's just that parents shouldn't have to foot the bill for it.

• Checkbook Management
